SENATOR HALE ATTACKS LONDON NAVAL PACT

Promised Relief from Heat Wave a Mere Mirage

COOLER PERIOD NOW EXPECTED BY SATURDAY

ALREADY DEATH TOLL FOR THE NORTHWEST STANDS AT 19

3 PERSONS DIED FROM HEAT PROSTRATIONS, 4 WERE DROWNED

St. Paul, Minn., July 11.—(UP)—Like a mirage on an arid desert, promised relief from the heat wave again was postponed today.

Although cooler weather had been forecast for last night, the weather man revised his decision and today said the northwest would be lucky if cooler weather settled over a parched countryside by Saturday.

Already the death toll for the northwest stood at 19. Three persons died from heat prostrations and four more were drowned according to additional tabulations today. The dead were:

Drowned—Sigmund Boulke, 21, Minneapolis; Earl Fagerlund, 25, Minneapolis; Marie Landsne, 22, Enderlin, N. D.; Alvin Erickson, 21, Willmar. Prostration—Alfred Anderson, 40, Minneapolis; Eric Carlsen, 42, Minneapolis; and Mrs. Veronica Holewa, 59, St. Paul.

Just the slightest relief was brought by breezes today whereas for the past few days there has been little or no air movement.

The scorching sun's rays had taken their toll at the National Open Golf championship tournament at Interlachen country club where at least ten persons, including an official scorekeeper, were overcome by the heat.

Curtailment of the use of water for sprinkling was asked in a warning issued by Minneapolis engineers. St. Paul officials said there faced no shortage although 36,000,000 gallons of water were used yesterday, more than a third more than the figure for a week ago Thursday.

BANGS, RICHBERG ADDRESS STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

Duluth, Minn., July 11.—(UP)—Tracy R. Bangs, Grand Forks, and Donald Richberg, Chicago labor leader addressed the annual Minnesota Bar Association convention today.

The gathering will close tonight with a banquet. Prior to election of officers, attorneys passed several resolutions asking statutory changes by the state legislature.

The state judicial council discussed in the University of Minnesota symposium prior to the opening of the bar meet, will be sponsored in the next legislative session. Other measures would further the cause of uniform state laws, eliminate stockholders double liability and end alleged carrying of legal business by banks and others not required to pass state bar examinations.

New York, July 11.—(UP)—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is writing a book in the spirit world, Nono Pecoraro, a medium, contended today.

"There is no death. I have a message for my wife. I will speak to her Saturday. I am writing a book over here. To you, Dunninger, I will give my thumbprint Tuesday to prove I still live. Joe, I want to shake hands with you."

Joseph Dunninger, head of the science investigating committee of psychic phenomena, who was present, said he shook hands with someone in the darkened room but at was "a very human hand."

RECEIPTS OF WHEAT AT KANSAS CITY EXCEED YEAR AGO

Kansas City, Mo., July 11.—(UP)—For the first time this season, receipts of wheat today exceeded those of a year ago, today's arrivals amounting to 1,177 cars, compared with 841 in 1929. Today's run was nearly as large as two days' receipts last Saturday of 1,202 cars.

MAYOR WALKER DRAGGED TO SEA BY DEEP SEA FISH

RESCUE WORKERS TOIL TO RECOVER MINERS' BODIES

2 BELIEVED PLUNGED TO DEATH IN MINE HOIST IN FIRE AT LEAD MINE

CAGED IN LIFT, MEN WERE THOUGHT BURIED UNDER MASS OF DEBRIS

Lead, S. D., July 11.—(UP)—Rescue workers toiled today in broiling heat seeking the bodies of two miners believed to have plunged to their death in a mine hoist when a $500,000 fire broke out in the Home Stake mine last night.

Caged in the lift, the men were thought to be buried under the mass of debris left when intense heat of the fire melted the hoisting cable. Nearly 500 miners working on various levels were brought safely to the surface by emergency ladders.

Early today intense heat made it almost impossible for rescue workers to reach the shaft. No hope for the life of Scotty Eastman and Wellman the trapped miners, was held out.

Eastman and Wellman, were on one of the lower levels when the fire broke out. They entered the lift and were being pulled rapidly to the surface. As the car shot up between the flaming walls of the shaft, the cable parted.

Throwing a bulkhead over the shaft, 90 feet below the surface of the ground, miners prevented spread of the fire to lower levels by playing streams of water over it.

The fire started with an oil explosion of unknown origin in the compressor room. The Ellison hoist, crusher building and dry rooms were totally destroyed. The fire was expected to have little effect on operations of the mine.

Crews were immediately put to work clearing away surface debris.

CAPT. HAWKS IN NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Wichita, Kansas, July 11.—(UP)—Capt. Frank Hawks, famous flyer, who holds trans-continental speed records, narrowly escaped death here today when his new racing plane, a special "Mystery S," Travelair, nosed over at Central Avenue airport.

Hawks was testing the speed of the tiny plane in which he hopes to fly from coast to coast in 12 hours or less and was coming in to land when his wheels brushed the telephone wires lining one side of the field, according to witnesses.

CAVALRY RETRACES CUSTER'S ROUTE

4TH U. S. TROOPERS ARE RIDING THROUGH BAKING SOUTH DAKOTA FOOTHILLS

Fort Meade, S. D., July 11.—(UP)—Out over Custer's Black Hills trail, the cavalry rode again today.

Striking through baking South Dakota foothills the Fourth U. S. Cavalry today reached the 66-year old trail of the exploratory expedition which first found gold in what was then the last outpost of the Sioux nation.

Riding from the south while Custer's men came from Bismarck, N. D., to the north, the Fourth cavalry reached the trail after three days march from Fort Meade, near Bear Butte.

For four days they will follow the old route to Hot Springs and later will hit it again from Sheridan to Box Elder creek and on back to Fort Meade. Only where fenced land and railroad make it impossible to retrace the Custer route exactly, will the expedition deviate from the early path.

It was Custer's famous Seventh cavalry that started the rush of settlers and prospectors to the foothills when a miner with the expedition found gold near the present town of Custer on French Creek.

Just as the Seventh cavalry deployed Indian scouts to seek the best ground for the advance, so advance guards galloped ahead of the Fourth cavalry and forces covered their rear in case of a "surprise" attack.

Attitude of Chicago Newspaper Publishers Toward Charges of Reporter Racketeering

NEWSPAPERS HAVE NOTHING TO BE CONCEALED

EVERY RUMOR OF ALLIANCE BETWEEN REPORTERS AND GANGSTERS INVESTIGATED

COUNTRY TO WITHHOLD JUDGMENT ON CHICAGO PRESS UNTIL FACTS ARE KNOWN

Following is the third and last of the United Press series of special dispatches dealing with developments in the Lingle murder case.

By EARL J. JOHNSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chicago, July 11.—(UP)—The attitude of Chicago newspaper publishers toward charges of racketeering among their reporters may be summarized in three typical statements:

1. That the newspapers have nothing to conceal.

2. That every rumor of an alliance between reporters and gangsters is being investigated.

3. That the country will do well to withhold judgment on the Chicago press until the facts are known.

These statements represent the essence of conversations which the United Press has had with leaders in the Chicago newspaper fraternity in the days of journalistic excitement since the murder of Alfred J. Lingle, Chicago Tribune police reporter.

Those interviewed were S. E. Thomson, publisher of the Daily Times; Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of the Tribune; Walter S. Strong, publisher of the Daily News; Homer Guck, publisher of the Herald-Examiner; Herman Black, publisher of the Evening American; and Charles A. Segner, managing editor, who spoke for John Shaffer, publisher of the Evening Post.

Each publisher is in charge of a property worth at least a million dollars. Most of the papers represent investments of many times that figure. Under the pressure of executive duties it would be unusual if the publishers were familiar with the private affairs of their police reporters or minor editors.

Colonel McCormick did not know of Lingle's dishonesty until the scandal of Lingle's gang connections came to light after his murder. The Lingle scandal itself was in the rumor stage several days before the evidence of his betrayal was strong enough to warrant exposure in the Tribune.

Meanwhile the intensely competitive newspaper atmosphere in Chicago was filled with rumors that other reporters beside Lingle were using (Continued on Page 3)

Forty-five minutes before the trap was sprung at 9:03 p. m., he embraced the Catholic faith. His last words were: "God bless you father."

At 9:16 Dr. R. E. Holmes, prison physician, pronounced him dead. His body will be sent to Garden City, Kan., where it will be cremated and the ashes given to relatives.

Gardeners stood beside the grave bareheaded and wearing their working clothes. There was no atmosphere of mourning at the grave, and except for an occasional black tie the family and friends avoided mourning dress.

At the nearby golf club a flag was lowered to half mast in observance of the burial.

PILOT AND FOUR KANSAS CITY MEN PLUNGE TO DEATH

HEAVY GUARD MAINTAINED ABOUT WRECKAGE AT AR- KANSAS PASS, TEXAS

CATASTROPHE IS MYSTERIOUS, KILLED WHILE RETURNING FROM FISHING TRIP

Arkansas Pass, Tex., July 11.—(UP)—A heavy guard was maintained today about the wreckage of an airplane in which the pilot and four prominent Kansas City men plunged mysteriously to their deaths while returning from a fishing vacation.

After viewing the wreckage, which was strewn over a radius of a half mile, and hearing the evidence of eye witnesses, aviators of the section were divided in their opinions concerning the crash.

Department of Commerce officials announced they would open an investigation at once to determine whether the plane was hit by lightning or if the wings crumbled under the strain. The guard will remain on duty until the investigation is completed.

The men killed were Murat Boyle, former president of the Missouri Bar Association; Raymond Watson, lawyer; Eugene Lynn, insurance executive; R. J. Delane, realtor and prominent republican; and K. E. Gabbert, pilot.

"I would have been with them but for love of the sport I was enjoying here," said H. Dierks, Kansas City lumberman, with whom the victims had been tarpon fishing at Corpus Christi Bay for several days. Dierks had intended to return by plane with his friends, but decided at the last minute to remain a while longer.

DEATH TOLL IN SILESIAN MINE PLACED AT 51

SENATE IN NEW START CONSIDERS LONDON TREATY

DETERMINED PRO TREATY MA- JORITY SMASHES FIRST OF OPPOSITION STRATEGY

McKELLAR RESOLUTION IS SHORT OF A GOOD DEAL OF ITS FORCE

By LYLE C. WILSON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 11.—(UP)—The senate made a new start today in consideration of the London naval treaty after a determined pro-treaty majority had smashed the first of the opposition strategy.

The McKellar resolution unqualifiedly requesting President Hoover to produce secret papers relating to the treaty was passed only after it had been shorn of its force by an amendment offered by Senator Robinson, dem., Ark.

The vote on the amendment, 38 to 17, foretold the approximate strength of the supporters and opponents of the treaty. The amendment, asked the president to produce the papers only if such action were "not incompatible with the public interest." A further change suggested that the president accompany the papers, if they were sent, with recommendations respecting their use.

Party lines disappeared in the first test vote which sent pro-treaty senators away from the chamber satisfied. Eight republicans and nine democrats voted to make the unqualified demand for the papers. Another test of strength may come today on a proposal to keep the senate in session Saturday.

President Hoover, under the resolution, now may comply either by sending the papers to the senate or by informing that body that to do so would be incompatible with the public interest. Several pro-treaty senators believe the papers should be produced on the theory that containing nothing which would substantiate intimations of secret understanding or mysterious commitments.

Other reports indicate that the documents contain typically Dawesian comments of the American ambassador to London about men and affairs in Europe, as well as some frank, if second-hand, expressions of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's ideas on continental political situation. With the amendments out of the way, Vice President Curtis has formally presented the treaty to the senate and debate will begin to revolve around the problem of tons and guns.

ONE YEAR FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

ALEXANDER G. DUFF OF NEW- BURGH, N. Y., KILLED 3 PEDESTRIANS

Newburgh, N. Y., July 11.—(UP)—Sentence of one year for drunken driving was imposed today on Alexander G. Duff whose automobile careened through the main street, killing three pedestrians.

Further, Duff faced three charges of manslaughter for his mad ride which moved down workers waiting for a bus, and Pat O'Mara was sought on a collateral manslaughter charge because he allegedly sold Duff the liquor which started him on his deadly drive.

Duff, police charged, drove swiftly down Main street yesterday, clipping off part of a picket fence as he swerved along the street, and finally darting between a building and a bus. The automobile then hit a group of workers boarding the bus.

Michael Powers, Edward White and William Gordon were struck. Gordon's body was found 50 feet away and he was dead. The other two died within an hour.

When Duff awakened today authorities said he knew nothing of the tragedy and did not know on what charges he was held.

Three charges of manslaughter will be presented to the county grand jury July 16.

SAYS BRITISH HAVE US HOG TIED, HAMSTRUNG

DECLARES U. S. NAVY HAS BE- COME LITTLE MORE THAN A TRADING ASSET

IF RATIFIED, PROVES WE ARE NOT CAPABLE OF LOOKING AFTER OWN INTERESTS

Washington, D. C., July 11.—Senator Frederick Hale of Maine, attacking the London naval treaty in the senate, today said: "Under the treaty we attempt to purchase the good will of the world through the sacrifices of the right to safeguard our interests. The British by the terms of this treaty have us hamstrung and hog tied, and there they will keep us as long as limitations of armaments are the order of the day.

"If this treaty is ratified by the senate in my judgment, we have definitely and conclusively proved to the world that in international relations we are not capable of looking after our own interests."

Hale said Secretary of State Stimson was actuated into signing the treaty by blind belief and confidence that there would not be another war. He criticized Stimson for the latter's rebuke to naval officers for opposition to the treaty and said they should be commended for their honest statement of opinions.

"The United States navy," Hale said, "the first line of defense of the country, its guarantee of continued national life, has become little more than a trading asset, armed with which a secretary of state rode forth to win his spurs. A treaty he must bring home. If to get that treaty a sacrifice of national security is necessary that is a trivial matter. The sacrifice must be made—the spurs must be won."

"They understand," Hale said of naval officers, "the problems of war and they realize that what the secretary of state calls the preventive war would not be incompatible with which are intended to make war less likely, may or may not operate successfully."

The senator said the British statement of their absolute naval minimum comprise the exact figures subsequently incorporated in the London treaty.

Washington, July 11.—(UP)—President Hoover refused today to submit to the senate secret documents in connection with negotiations of the London naval treaty, declaring that their publication would constitute "a betrayal of trust" on the part of the United States.

His refusal was embodied in a message to the senate in response to the McKellar resolution requesting him to submit documents whose publication would not be incompatible with the public interest.

The president's message reached the senate while Chairman Hale of the naval committee was engaged in a lengthy speech opposing the treaty. Opponents to the treaty, led by Senator Hiram Johnson, repn., Calif., had demanded the papers, claiming they were necessary to a full understanding of the treaty.

A number of senators have seen the disputed papers, the president explained, upon promise that they would keep the material in confidence.

"I believe that no senator can read these documents without agreeing with me that no other course than to insist upon the maintenance of such confidence is possible," he wrote.

"And I take this opportunity to repeat with the utmost emphasis that in these negotiations there were no secret or concealed understanding, promises or interpretations for any commitments whatever, except as appear in the treaty itself and in the interpretative exchange of notes recently suggested by your committee on foreign affairs, all of which are now in the hands of the senate."

"In view of this I believe that it further comply with the above resolution would be incompatible with the public interest."

Washington, July 11.—(UP)—The senate made a new start today in consideration of the London naval treaty after a determined pro-treaty majority had smashed the first of the opposition strategy.

The McKellar resolution unqualifiedly requesting President Hoover to produce secret papers relating to the treaty was passed only after it had been shorn of its force by an amendment offered by Senator Robinson, dem., Ark.

The vote on the amendment, 38 to 17, foretold the approximate strength of supporters and opponents of the treaty. The amendment asked the president to produce the papers only if such action were "not incompatible with the public interest." A further change suggested that the president accompany the papers, if they were sent, with recommendations respecting their use.

Party lines disappeared in the first test vote which sent pro-treaty senators away from the chamber satisfied. Eight republicans and nine democrats voted to make the unqualified demand for the papers. Another test of strength may come today on a proposal to keep the senate in session Saturday.

President Hoover, under the resolution, now may comply either by sending the papers to the senate or by informing that body that to do so would be incompatible with the public interest. Several pro-treaty senators believe the papers should be produced on the theory that contain nothing which would substantiate intimations of secret understanding or mysterious commitments.

Other reports indicate that the documents contain typically Dawesian comments of the American ambassador to London about men and affairs in Europe, as well as some frank, if second-hand expressions of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's ideas on continental political situation.

With the amendments out of the way, Vice President Curtis has formally presented the treaty to the senate and debate will begin to revolve around the problem of tons and guns.

ONE YEAR FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

ALEXANDER G. DUFF OF NEW-
BURGH, N. Y., KILLED
3 PEDESTRIANS

Newburgh, N. Y., July 11.—(UP)—Sentence of one year for drunken driving was imposed today on Alexander G. Duff whose automobile careened through the main street, killing three pedestrians.

Further, Duff faced three charges of manslaughter for his mad ride which mowed down workers waiting for a bus, and Pat O'Mara was sought on a collateral manslaughter charge because he allegedly sold Duff the liquor which started him on his deadly drive.

Duff, police charged, drove swiftly down Main street yesterday, clipping off part of a picket fence as he swerved along the street, and finally darting between a building and a bus. The automobile then hit a group of workers boarding the bus.

Michael Powers, Edward White and William Gordon were struck. Gordon's body was found 50 feet away and he was dead. The other two died within an hour.

When Duff awakened today authorities said he knew nothing of the tragedy and did not know on what charges he was held.

Three charges of manslaughter will be presented to the county grand jury July 16.

SAYS BRITISH HAVE US HOG TIED, HAMSTRUNG

DECLARES U. S. NAVY HAS BE-COME LITTLE MORE THAN A
TRADING ASSET

IF RATIFIED, PROVES WE ARE NOT CAPABLE OF LOOKING AFTER OWN INTERESTS

Washington, D. C., July 11.—Senator Frederick Hale of Maine, attacking the London naval treaty in the senate today said: "Under the treaty we attempt to purchase the good will of the world through the sacrifices of the right to safeguard our interests. The British by the terms of this treaty have us hamstrung and hog tied, and there they will keep us as long as limitations of armaments are the order of the day.

"If this treaty is ratified by the senate in my judgment, we have definitely and conclusively proved to the world that in international relations we are not capable of looking after our own interests."

Hale said Secretary of State Stimson was actuated into signing the treaty by blind belief and confidence that there would not be another war. He criticized Stimson for the latter's rebuke to naval officers for opposition to the treaty and said they should be commended for their honest statement of opinions.

"The United States navy," Hale said, "the first line of defense of the country, its guarantee of continued national life, has become little more than a trading asset, armed with which a secretary of state rode forth to win his spurs. A treaty he must bring home. If to get that treaty a sacrifice of national security is necessary that is a trivial matter. The sacrifice must be made—the spurs must be won."

"They understand," Hale said of naval officers, "the problems of war and they realize that what the secretary of state calls the preventive nation would not be incompatible with which are intended to make war less likely, may or may not operate successfully."

The senator said the British statement of their absolute naval minimum comprise the exact figures subsequently incorporated in the London treaty.

Washington, July 11.—(UP)—President Hoover refused today to submit to the senate secret documents in connection with negotiations of the London naval treaty, declaring that their publication would constitute "a betrayal of trust" on the part of the United States.

His refusal was embodied in a message to the senate in response to the McKellar resolution requesting him to submit documents whose publication would not be incompatible with the public interest.

The president's message reached the senate while Chairman Hale of the naval committee was engaged in a lengthy speech opposing the treaty. Opponents to the treaty, led by Senator Hiram Johnson, repn., Calif., had demanded the papers, claiming they were necessary to a full understanding of the treaty.

A number of senators have seen the disputed papers, the president explained, upon promise that they would keep the material in confidence.

"I believe that no senator can read these documents without agreeing with me that no other course than to insist upon the maintenance of such confidence is possible," he wrote.

"And I take this opportunity to repeat with the utmost emphasis that in these negotiations there were no secret or concealed understanding, promises or interpretations for any commitments whatever, except as appear in the treaty itself and in the interpretative exchange of notes recently suggested by your committee on foreign affairs, all of which are now in the hands of the senate.

"In view of this I believe that to further comply with the above resolution would be incompatible with the public interest."

JOHN HUNTER IS SECRETLY MARRIED

REFUELING ENDURANCE FLIGHT BROTHER BRINGS BRIDE TO CHICAGO

Chicago, July 11.—(UP)—John Hunter, one of the famous Sparta, Ill., brothers who recently set the new refueling endurance flight record, has been secretly married since May 7, 1935.

Even the other members of his family did not know of the marriage, it was learned yesterday when John flew down to Sparta and brought back his bride, who, like his sister, Irene, is a school teacher. She formerly was Laura McCarey, daughter of a Sparta coal miner.

John and Kenneth and their brothers, Walter and Albert, who manned the refueling plane during the 553 hour flight of the City of Chicago, were guests yesterday of the Association of Commerce and joined today in extending the city's welcome to Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd.

ATTITUDE OF CHICAGO NEW-PAPER PUBLISHERS TOWARD CHARGES OF REPORTER RACKETEERING

their positions for illicit gain. Publishers began private investigations, hired detectives to check up on certain staff men whose names were mentioned in the rumors, and questioned their editors about men working "on the outside." In some offices personal finances of reporters were looked into by executive order.

But, as Homer Guck, of the Herald-Examiner phrased it, "a father often is last to learn of his own son's misdeeds." None of the publishers even now will guarantee that his own staff is 100 per cent pure but all are emphatic in saying that any man found to be racketeering will be discharged and prosecuted.

Walter Strong of the Daily News sees the situation which has developed in the waking of the Lingle killing as endangering public confidence in the press.

"Under present conditions of crime" Strong said, "the newspapers are about all the people have left. Public confidence in the press must be preserved."

Herman Black of the American pointed out the futility of expecting reporters assigned to cover gangland to avoid all contact with gangsters. A reporter's first job when assigned to a crime expose is to obtain the confidence of at least one gangster who will talk. Each reporter develops his own technique in such dealings. Often it is necessary to hire tipsters and stool pigeons. Leland Reese, Daily News reporter, once had such a connection with Julius Rosenberg, who was dropped by the paper after he was said to have attempted extortion among gangsters by threatening to "expose them in the News." These connections are looked upon by the papers as "just a part of the business."

All have expressed an eagerness to have an official showdown on the racketeering charges "to clear the names of those who are not guilty." Colonel McCormick offered to make a personal appearance before the grand jury and submit the information he has gathered since the Lingle murder. Yesterday the Evening Post and Evening American demanded editorially that Harry T. Brundage, author of the most sweeping charges against local newspapermen, be brought before the grand jury on his own terms.

Brundage is a widely-known reporter for the St. Louis Star. He spent several days here investigating the Lingle murder for his paper and wrote a series of dispatches about "itchy palmed newspapermen" in Chicago.

In his articles, which were re-printed by the Chicago Tribune, Brundage suggested the grand jury investigate: "A reporter who is known as the 'unofficial mayor of Chicago'."

"Why another reporters is paid 5 cents a bag for every sack of cement sold in Chicago."

"The reason why one editor maintains an office in the loop separate from his newspaper office."

"The bond signing racket, as a police reporter is said to control it."

Brundage offered to take his evidence before a Chicago grand jury. Frank W. Taylor, Jr., managing editor of the St. Louis Star, refused to let him do so unless State's Attorney John A. Swanson would agree not to question the reporter privately first. Taylor did not want to run the risk of having Swanson hear Brundage's story, brand it flimsy, and then refuse to take him before the grand jury. Swanson replied that a personal interview was imperative as a part of the legal procedure thus the editor and the state's attorney reached an impasse.

But the Chicago papers are urging Swanson to waive legal procedure and accept Brundage on his own terms. It is likely that he may yet have a chance to give to the grand jury the names of the reporters he has accused as racketeers.

-Dinnidpc?

Chicago, July 11.—(UP)—State's Attorney John A. Swanson announced today that he was "disappointed" at the progress in the Alfred J. Lingle murder investigation, but was not prepared to abandon hope of early capture of the Chicago Tribune reporter's slayers.

Swanson frankly discussed the status of the Cook county grand jury investigation into the Lingle death and into charges of corrupt alliances between gangsters and newspapermen.

"I am disappointed with the Lingle investigation," Swanson said, "but that is because I am disappointed with any investigation until the case is cleared up."

"I am not prepared to concede that the Lingle case will reach an impasse. When I am, my actions will be different. The grand jury is in session now for the purpose of investigation all tangible leads. We still hope to get results soon."

Swanson said that he did not expect to call Leland H. Reese, Chicago Daily News crime reporter, before the grand jury, despite reports to the contrary.

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

If you are following a reducing diet, it is doubly important that you take a regular amount of roughage into the system daily. Most reducing diets do not contain a sufficient amount of roughage. The result is constipation—thief of both health and beauty.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is recommended by many doctors and dietitians because it contains the bulk necessary to insure proper elimination.

Also, because it contains the iron needed to help prevent anemia—another danger in reducing diets.

ALL-BRAN is not fattening. Its bulk sweeps the system clean of poisonous wastes—helping to promote glorious health and beauty.

A popular way to eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is soaked in fruit juice. Try it! It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals, salads and soups. It adds flavor to cooked foods and is equally effective. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It is served in restaurants, hotels and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

CLAIM THAT CAPONE PERJURED HIMSELF

Miami, Fla., July 11.—(UP)—Three state witnesses today corroborated in detail the testimony of Miami Director of Public Safety S. D. McCreary, that Al Capone, Chicago racketeer, perjured himself in the hearing on Capone's charges of false arrest brought against McCreary.

Frequent angry arguments of opposing counsel featured the direct and cross-examination of the three witnesses, Police Chief Guy C. Reeves, acting desk Sergeant Earl Hudson and T. H. Hilton, secretary to Reeves, all of whom said they were present when Capone was brought to headquarters.

New York, July 11.—(UP)—One of the worst traffic snarls of the year occurred when the signal light system went out of order throughout upper New York last night, with red and green lights flashing simultaneously at all four intersections for almost three hours. Pedestrians had to jump for their lives, but no serious accidents resulted.

The New Freight Burden

THE DISPATCH has viewed with some misgivings the new rate schedule mapped out for western territory by the recent Interstate Commerce Commission decision. St. Paul Pioneer Press takes occasion to dig into these new rates and declares them a new freight burden.

Editorially it states that not even the Interstate Commerce Commission itself seems thoroughly to understand the effects of the freight rate increases which that body has just authorized for this territory. But this much is within the understanding of everyone, that the increases are disastrous to the Northwest and that when the experts emerge from their studies they will have nothing but bad news to report.

On the face of it there is no justification for a differential of as much as 25 per cent between the shippers of this section and their competitors over in Illinois. Commissioner Porter, who files a vigorous dissenting opinion, says that never before in the 43 years of the Commission's history has there been a single important case in which it imposed a 25 per cent discrimination against this territory in favor of Illinois on any commodity.

The railroads in the Western trunk line territory have won only a paper victory. The extent of their gain is not to be measured by the shippers' loss. It is possible for railroads to lose more than they gain when their victory is at the expense of their own volume of traffic. Higher rates are not the same thing as increased revenue. The Commission has ordered these increases with what seems a ruthless disregard of the competitive position of the Northwest. There is something academic and unreal about the rate making process. A theoretical profit is set for the railroads and on that basis is built a theoretical structure of freight rates with a minimum of emphasis on the inherent reasonableness of the rates themselves.

The railroads have little to gain from these new rates if the final result is to weaken the competitive standing of the industries on which they rely for their volume of traffic. Fancy rates look very pretty on paper, but they are important only when they can be applied to actual goods in transport. The railroads, however, may be wiser in their imposition of these new rates than the Commission was in authorizing them. The railroads cannot profit if they impose rates which injure business materially and if they drive increasing shares of their traffic into using motor trucks. An enlightened selfishness impels them to take a realistic view of their rate charges.

There is a grim touch of humor in the Commission's concession that inasmuch as the agricultural depression is not completely cured, the full force of the increased rates will not be applied to the farm goods on which it is effective. These are butter, eggs, poultry, canned goods and, reasonably enough, farm implements. It is hard to realize that the rate inquiry out of which these increases proceed was originally undertaken, at the direction of Congress, with view of giving farm relief through a reduction of the freight burden. The final outcome is that there are to be increased freight rates on some farm products.

When business enterprises, through artificial handicap, can no longer compete, they simply do not sell and a motive is supplied for sweet reasonableness in high railroad strategy. But when the farmer's freight rates go up, the result perforce is that he comes back from market with that much less of the proceeds in his pocket. The farmer pays the freight both ways; it is added to the cost of the things he buys, it is subtracted from the price he gets for the things he sells. If he were in a better bargaining position this might not be true and he perhaps could reverse the charge. This is another good reason for the energetic development of the co-operative idea.

Meanwhile, horizontal freight rate increases are another good reason for the equally energetic projecting of the inland waterways.

A Writer's View of Writers

GRANT OVERTON, whose death was announced last week, knew much about writings, published and unpublished, says the Kansas City Star editorially. As a newspaper critic, as literary editor for Collier's magazine and as manuscript reader for a publishing house, he studied both writers and their products. Perhaps for the best advice, young writers should go to someone who has read many rejected manuscripts. Mr. Overton was of the opinion that no one, at the outset, should count on making a living by writing books or magazine articles; that if the impulse to write could not be controlled entirely, it should be controlled at least until some other way of making a living had been found. He had seen so many failures, so many hand-to-mouth existences and relatively so few prosperous careers that he was impelled to give this advice.

Mr. Overton wrote fiction himself, and some of it very entertaining fiction. His novels include "Merrmaid," "World Without End," "The Answerer," "Island of the Innocent," and "The Thousand-and-First Night." But it was not until he had contributed analytical books, such as "Cargoes for Crusoes," "American Night's Entertainment," "The Women Who Make Out Novels" and "Why Authors Go Wrong," that he could count himself a real success. In these works he revealed an understanding of the literary impulse, and better than most writers why it fails or why it succeeds.

Chickens Are Perverse

CHICKENS are perverse birds. With the egg market rising, many of them have ceased laying.

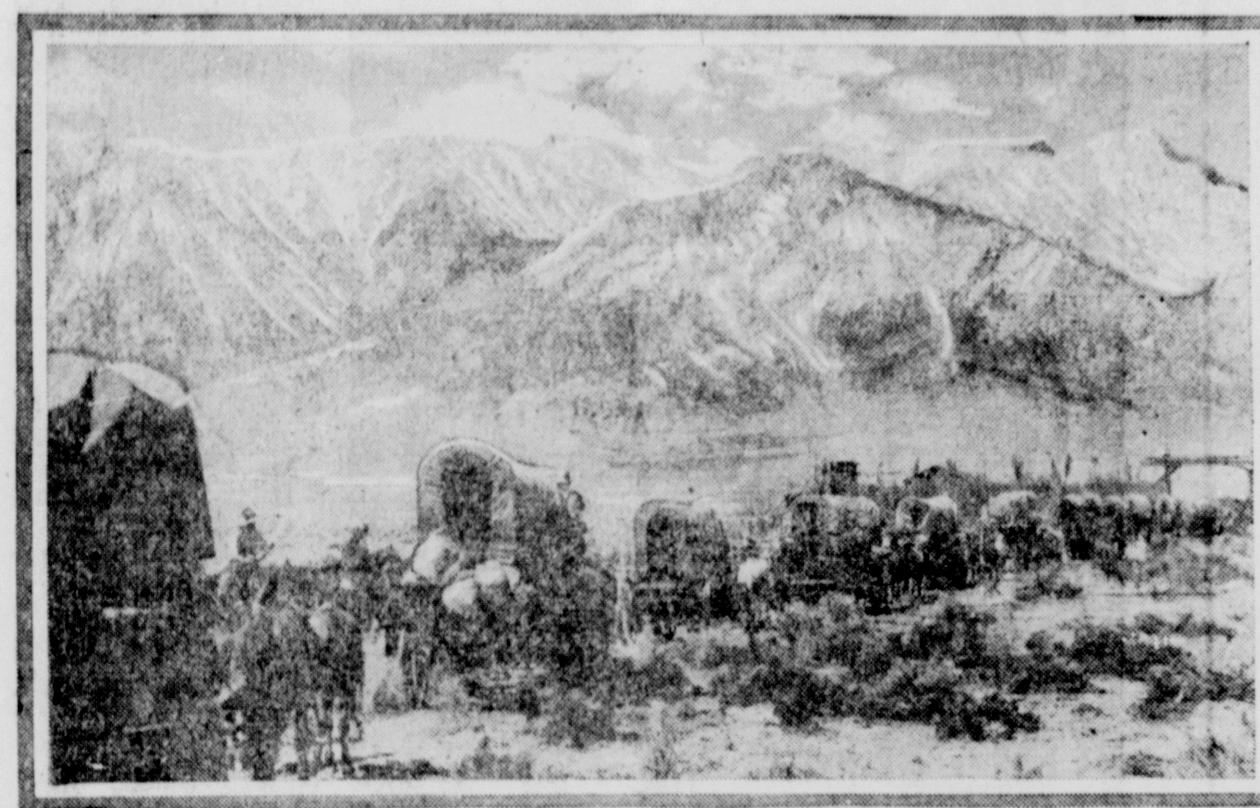

We take the story of a poultry farm owner near Brainerd who has large flocks. In the winter his flocks were 60 per cent layers. In the spring, of course, he weeded out the birds and sold many.

Lately he stopped feeding mash and this, coupled no doubt with the terrific rise in temperature, has had such an effect on the layers that a flock of 400 is now only producing four dozen eggs daily.

TEMPERATURE as given by a government thermometer is registered in a small elevated box with shutter-like sides. This permits free entry and movement of air, and reduces any possible radiation. An unprotected thermometer exposed to radiation will register higher.

COAL bids are being asked by the school board. Recent bids failed to show much diversity in prices.

Iris Adapts Itself

From the study of geographical distribution of the iris, it appears that the two centers of original location are central and southern Europe, and the Orient, especially China. For the most part, however, the exotic species are thoroughly at home on the American continent and in certain sections have established themselves as freely as any native plant.

Jewels in Industry

Rubies, sapphires, garnets and diamonds are the jewels used chiefly in watch bearings. They are also used together with agates and other jewels, in electrical and surveyors' instruments, meters, compasses, clocks, phonographs and various other precision instruments. Such precious stones used for technical purposes would include all of the above, as distinguished from their use merely for ornament or jewelry.

The New Freight Burden

THE DISPATCH has viewed with some misgivings the new rate schedule mapped out for western territory by the recent Interstate Commerce Commission decision. St. Paul Pioneer Press takes occasion to dig into these new rates and declares them a new freight burden.

Editorially it states that not even the Interstate Commerce Commission itself seems thoroughly to understand the effects of the freight rate increases which that body has just authorized for this territory. But this much is within the understanding of everyone, that the increases are disastrous to the Northwest and that when the experts emerge from their studies they will have nothing but bad news to report.

On the face of it there is no justification for a differential of as much as 25 per cent between the shippers of this section and their competitors over in Illinois. Commissioner Porter, who files a vigorous dissenting opinion, says that never before in the 43 years of the Commission's history has there been a single important case in which it imposed a 25 per cent discrimination against this territory in favor of Illinois on any commodity.

The railroads in the Western trunk line territory have won only a paper victory. The extent of their gain is not to be measured by the shippers' loss. It is possible for railroads to lose more than they gain when their victory is at the expense of their own volume of traffic. Higher rates are not the same thing as increased revenue. The Commission has ordered these increases with what seems a ruthless disregard of the competitive position of the Northwest. There is something academic and unreal about the rate making process. A theoretical profit is set for the railroads and on that basis is built a theoretical structure of freight rates with a minimum of emphasis on the inherent reasonableness of the rates themselves.

The railroads have little to gain from these new rates if the final result is to weaken the competitive standing of the industries on which they rely for their volume of traffic. Fancy rates look very pretty on paper, but they are important only when they can be applied to actual goods in transport. The railroads, however, may be wiser in their imposition of these new rates than the Commission was in authorizing them. The railroads cannot profit if they impose rates which injure business materially and if they drive increasing shares of their traffic into using motor trucks. An enlightened selfishness impels them to take a realistic view of their rate charges.

There is a grim touch of humor in the Commission's concession that inasmuch as the agricultural depression is not completely cured, the full force of the increased rates will not be applied to the farm goods on which it is effective. These are butter, eggs, poultry, canned goods and, reasonably enough, farm implements. It is hard to realize that the rate inquiry out of which these increases proceed was originally undertaken, at the direction of Congress, with view of giving farm relief through a reduction of the freight burden. The final outcome is that there are to be increased freight rates on some farm products.

When business enterprises, through artificial handicap, can no longer compete, they simply do not sell and a motive is supplied for sweet reasonableness in high railroad strategy. But when the farmer's freight rates go up, the result perforce is that he comes back from market with that much less of the proceeds in his pocket. The farmer pays the freight both ways; it is added to the cost of the things he buys, it is subtracted from the price he gets for the things he sells. If he were in a better bargaining position this might not be true and he perhaps could reverse the charge. This is another good reason for the energetic development of the co-operative idea.

Meanwhile, horizontal freight rate increases are another good reason for the equally energetic projecting of the inland waterways.

A Writer's View of Writers

GRANT OVERTON, whose death was announced last week, knew much about writings, published and unpublished, says the Kansas City Star editorially. As a newspaper critic, as literary editor for Collier's magazine and as manuscript reader for a publishing house, he studied both writers and their products. Perhaps for the best advice, young writers should go to someone who has read many rejected manuscripts. Mr. Overton was of the opinion that no one, at the outset, should count on making a living by writing books or magazine articles; that if the impulse to write could not be controlled entirely, it should be controlled at least until some other way of making a living had been found. He had seen so many failures, so many hand-to-mouth existences and relatively so few prosperous careers that he was impelled to give this advice.

Mr. Overton wrote fiction himself, and some of it very entertaining fiction. His novels include "Mermoid," "World Without End," "The Answerer," "Island of the Innocent," and "The Thousand-and-First Night." But it was not until he had contributed analytical books, such as "Cargoes for Crusoes," "American Night's Entertainment," "The Women Who Make Out Novels" and "Why Authors Go Wrong," that he could count himself a real success. In these works he revealed an understanding of the literary impulse, and better than most writers why it fails or why it succeeds.

Chickens Are Perverse

CHICKENS are perverse birds. With the egg market rising, many of them have ceased laying.

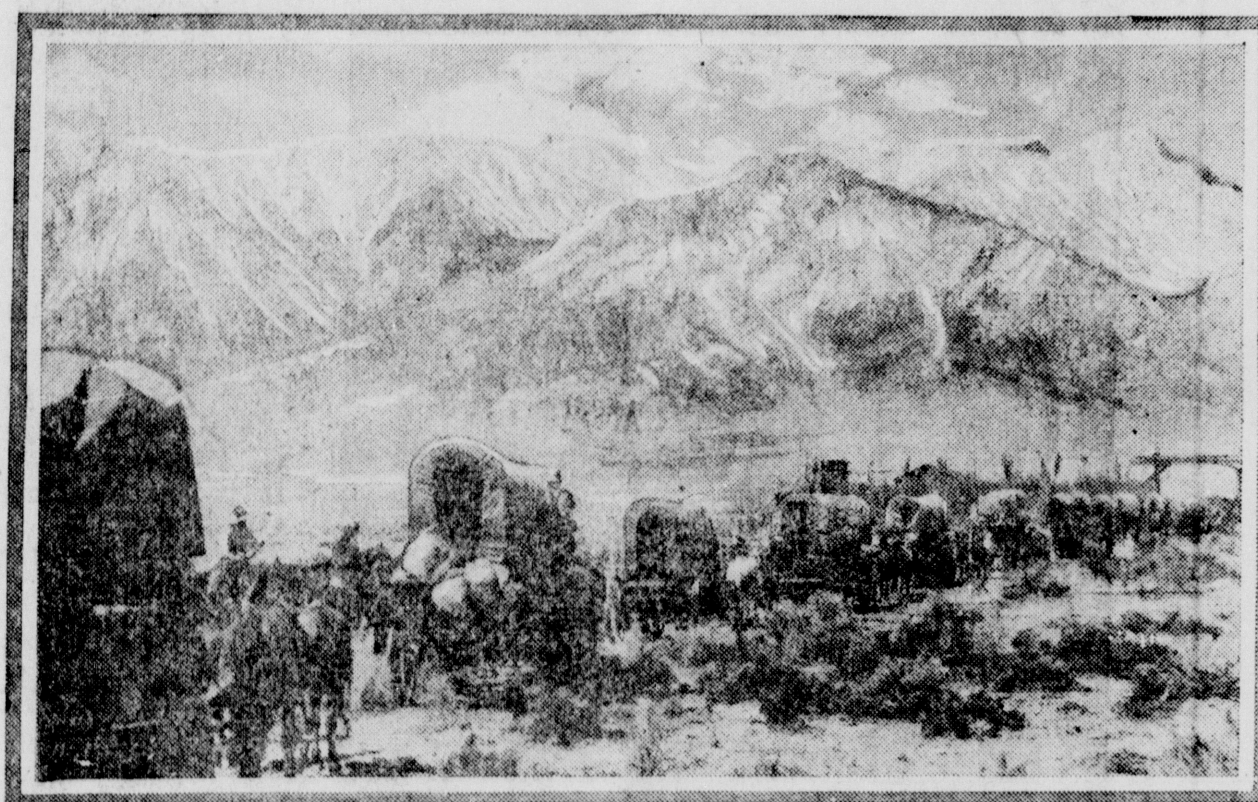

We take the story of a poultry farm owner near Brainerd who has large flocks. In the winter his flocks were 60 per cent layers. In the spring, of course, he weeded out the birds and sold many.

Lately he stopped feeding mash and this, coupled no doubt with the terrific rise in temperature, has had such an effect on the layers that a flock of 400 is now only producing four dozen eggs daily.

TEMPERATURE as given by a government thermometer is registered in a small elevated box with shutter-like sides. This permits free entry and movement of air, and reduces any possible radiation. An unprotected thermometer exposed to radiation will register higher.

COAL bids are being asked by the school board. Recent bids failed to show much diversity in prices.

Jewels in Industry

Rubies, sapphires, garnets and diamonds are the jewels used chiefly in watch bearings. They are also used together with agates and other jewels, in electrical and surveyors' instruments, meters, compasses, clocks, phonographs and various other precision instruments. Such precious stones used for technical purposes would include all of the above, as distinguished from their use merely for ornament or jewelry.

THIRD MAJOR LEAGUE PROBABILITY IN BASEBALL

ARMOUR HAS 76 TO ADD TO HIS 70 THURSDAY

JONES WITH HIS CUSTOMARY 'STEADY PAR GOLF TO BE OUT IN FRONT

HIS FAVORITE POSITION AT HALF WAY MARK OF TOUR-NAMENT

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

Interlachen Country Club, Minneapolis, Minn., July 11.—(UP)—With Bobby Jones among the late starters in the National Open championship, the early pace-making was left to his most formidable rivals among the professionals.

Tommy Armour of Orchard Lake, Mich., champion himself three years ago and joint leader with MacDonald Smith over the field at the end of the first round, had an aggregate of 146 to establish an early lead today.

Armour shot a 76 today, to add to his par shattering 70 of Thursday. Two strokes behind the lanky Scot was Bob Shave of Kent, Ohio, who turned in a par 72 this morning to acquire an aggregate of 148.

It appeared as though Bobby Jones, who went out with Jock Hutchinson at 1:30 p. m., had only to shoot his customary steady par golf to get out in front, his favorite position at the half way mark.

MacDonald Smith, out in 37, started home in par figures. The first day's leader still was missing putts by inches, which cost him another brilliant score.

Smith had a splendid drive at the tenth, and his second split the pin leaving him a five footer. He missed and took par four.

At the dog legged eleventh, Smith again drove well and was just short of the green with a No. 4 iron. His third was hole high, two feet from the cup. He blew the putt and took par five.

The twelfth, longest of the course, cost Mac another five. He hit his tee shot 230 yards against a stiff breeze. His second was long and straight, his third hole high, 15 feet to the left of the pin. Again his putt hung on the lip of the cup and he had another five.

Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston of St. Paul, national amateur champion, eliminated himself from the tournament with an 81 today and an aggregate of 161. The heat bothered Jimmy yesterday and he had all kinds of trouble today, going out in 40 and back in 41, nine over par.

By FRANK GETTY

Interlachen Country Club, Minneapolis, Minn., July 11.—(UP)—The pros at Interlachen, arch enemies of Bobby Jones in the battle for the open championship, set a fast pace for the title holder today.

Out early while the rolling fairways were swept with a refreshing breeze and the sun's rays were partly obscured, Gene Sarazen, Al Espinosa, Tommy Armour, Walter Hagen and MacDonald Smith settled down to the business of low scoring.

Espinosa, the Northbrook, Ill., pro-bettered par for his outward nine with a 35, while Sarazen reached the turn in par figures.

Tommy Armour, who led the field with MacDonald Smith on the opening day, started rather shakily. The former champion drove into the rough at the approach of the first fairway, and his approach went into the gallery at the left. He picked up on the green and was down in two for a five. One over par. At the second, Armour approached too strongly and was over the green, afterwards missing a 6 foot putt and taking another five.

The slender, dark complexioned Scot got his par three at the short third, and negotiated a birdies four at the popular fourth hole. Tommy's second was in the rough at the left of the green here, but he chipped dead and took only one putt.

Walter Hagen also found trouble at the first hole, where he put his second shot into the rough to the left of the green. "The Haig" had a chance to get the stroke back by getting down a five footer, but missed.

Hagen got a birdie three at the second, being hole high in two and sinking a sizeable putt.

Meanwhile Bob Shave, professional from Kent, Ohio, batted his way right into the forefront of the picture at Interlachen by turning in a card of 72 for his second round. This equaled par and with his 76 of yesterday made shave a certain qualifier.

The lowest sixty and ties of today's round will play 36 more holes tomorrow.

It was thought that this might be about the qualifying limit. The weather conditions were not as severe at Interlachen today, thanks to a tempering breeze, but the scores were not much better.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Interlachen Country Club, Minneapolis, July 11.—(UP)—Knowing the mark at which he had to shoot, with most of his rivals out in front of him, Bobby Jones today set out on his second round of the National Open golf championship, surrounded by an enthusiastic gallery of 3,500.

Attired in a loose fitting white shirt which hung outside his white knickerbockers, the champion stepped up to the first tee in the blazing sunlight, and nonchalantly smacked a long, soaring tee shot, 275 yards down the right center of the first fairway. He was striking the most important blow in defense of his championship, for the other leaders weakened today and Jones had a chance to get well out in front.

The crowd cheered Bobby's drive and rushed down the first fairway without waiting for Jock Hutchinson the champion's partner, to shoot.

On hole No. 1, Jones drove straight down the fairway about 275 yards, his ball rolling to a point just past the dog leg to the right. His approach was short and headed for a trap, but it struck a pebble and caromed past the danger, rolling to within a foot of the green, a fine break for Bobby. Jones chipped up to within 8 feet, but missed the putt and took a five, one over par.

Hutchinson also took a five. Hole No. 2: Bobby smacked his tee shot straight down the middle, about 250 yards. He pitched to within 15 feet of the cup, and his approach putt hung on the lip of the cup while the crowd gasped and rooted for it to go down. Jones took a four on this par four hole. Hutchinson a five.

Hole No. 3: Jones tee shot split the pin stopping 20 feet from the cup at this 180 yard one shotter. He took two putts for his par 3.

Hutchinson also had a three at the third hole.

Hole No. 4: Bobby bagged a birdie at the fourth. His tee shot was 250 yards down the fairway, and his second shot, with the wood left him 20 feet from the edge of the green. He chipped to within 18 inches of the cup, the ball rolling up and the crowd yelling: "Go in!" It was birdie four for Jones and a par five for Hutchinson.

Hole No. 5: Another birdie for Bobby at the 178-yard fifth hole. His tee shot rolled up to within 30 feet of the cup and what did Mr. Jones do, but ran home that putt. The crowd's yell of delight could be heard 14 miles away. Poor Jock got a four to Bob's two. Jones was one under par at the fifth.

Hole No. 6: Jones drove 235 yards straight down the fairway at the sixth and approached to within 12 feet of the cup. He needed two putts for a par four. Hutchinson took a five.

Hole No. 7: Jones was playing conservatively and cautiously at this stage. He had a stroke on par and wanted to conserve his advantage. His drive was straight at the seventh and nearly to the green, which is 352 yards from the tee. His approach shot landed 15 feet from the cup and stayed there. Two putts gave the champion his par four. Hutchinson got a four.

Hole No. 8: Bobby hit a beautiful tee shot straight down the alley at the eighth, and his approach shot, a high mashie niblick, landed dead a foot inside of the apron of the green. He sent an approach putt up to within three inches of the cup and got another.

While everyone was watching Bobby Jones and commenting upon the let-down by Armour, Mac Smith and Hagen, young Horton Smith went blazing around the first nine holes in 33 strokes, three under par.

An eagle three at the ninth where he rammed home an eight-foot putt after a beautiful approach across the lake, gave Horton a great chance to lead the field.

INDEPENDENT GROUP MINOR LEAGUE 'FARMS'

THREATENED SEVERANCE OF PLAYER RELATIONS LOOMS OMNIOUSLY

MINORS REFUSE TO SUBMIT TO OLD UNIVERSAL DRAFT AGREEMENT

By DIXON STEWART
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 11.—(UP)—Baseball men today saw the possibility of a third major league, with an independent group of minor league 'farms,' in the threatened severance of player relations between the American and National leagues and minor leagues refusing to submit to the universal draft agreement.

The five "non-selective" leagues—The American Association, Pacific Coast, International, Western and Three-I leagues—are in open rebellion against the major league ultimatum that they will refuse to purchase players from or release players to leagues refusing to accept the "draft."

Representatives of the minor leagues expressed doubt that the major leagues would adhere to their resolution, but predicted that if they did the entire structure of organized baseball would be broken.

Minor league owners contend that if the majors recruit no talent from these circuits the Class AA organizations soon would become as strong as the American and National leagues, thereby paving the way for a new major league.

"Third League" talk has been prevalent for several years and advocates believe the prospects for a new major league are far more favorable than ever before.

A number of minor league cities support baseball better than some of the cities holding major league franchises. With airplane transportation to neutralize the handicap of long jumps between member cities, supporters of the third league plan, believe an organization, including leading clubs of the three Class AA leagues, could combat successfully the American and National leagues.

If all five of the non-selective leagues unite to fight against major league domination they would have a strong nucleus for an independent organization. Clubs not included in the "Third Big League" would be grouped in new minor leagues for the development of players. It is probable that a number of leagues now submitting to organized baseball's draft rule would break loose and cast their lot with the outlaw group.

George Putman, manager of the San Francisco Seals, Mike Kelley, Minneapolis manager, and Robert J. Connery, owner of the St. Paul club, already have announced that they will fight the attempt to enforce the draft.

The fight will be at 140 pounds. My Sullivan will fight Vince Dundee in the preliminary.

ROSENBLUM MAY BOX WALKER AT ATLANTIC CITY

New York, July 10.—(UP)—Refusal of the New York state athletic commission to allow Maxie Rosenbloom, world light heavyweight champion, to engage in heavyweight competition, may result in a light heavyweight championship bout between Rosenbloom and Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, at Atlantic City auditorium, Aug. 30.

Negotiations for the bout are under way—both fighters having exhausted competition in their own class and being denied permission to fight overweight bouts in New York.

Walker is under suspension in New York and if Rosenbloom accepts the bout he plans to renounce his title to avoid suspension by the New York commission for meeting an ineligible fighter.

4 TEAMS COMPETE FOR D-BALL HONORS

Playoff in City League Scheduled to Start Next Tuesday

With the playoff between the four leading teams, the city diamond ball league will bring its schedule to a close next week. The final game of a 60 game schedule for the league will be played next Monday, the games starting on April 21 and continuing through July 14.

Enthusiasm on the part of both the players and the fans has marked the season, large crowds attending most of the games.

Starting next Tuesday, July 15, the four leading teams will meet in a playoff series for the city championship. A silver trophy which will become the permanent possession of the champions is now on display in the Dispatch window. The announcement of the playoff schedule will be printed early next week.

The probable entrants in the playoff series will be the J. C. Penney team, the John M. Bye team, the Sinclair Oil team, and either the Meschke Grocery team or the Montgomery Ward team.

Penneys, the league leaders, have won 13 straight games and have been neither beaten nor tied in league competition. Even though they should lose their final game tomorrow they could not be knocked out of first place before the playoff.

The John M. Bye Clothing company team is in second place at the present time with nine victories and three defeats. This outfit won the city championship in both 1928 and 1929. The Sinclair Oil company with nine victories and four defeats is a close third in the league standing at the present time. A win for the Oilers and a defeat for the Bye team would put them in a tie for the second place in the league standing.

The Meschke grocery team is in third place at the present time with seven victories, six defeats and one tie. Montgomery Ward and company has a very good chance, however, to displace Meschke's and win a place in the playoff quartet.

The city league standing at the present time is:

ROSENBLOOM MAY BOX WALKER AT ATLANTIC CITY

New York, July 10.—(UP)—Refusal of the New York state athletic commission to allow Maxie Rosenbloom, world light heavyweight champion, to engage in heavyweight competition, may result in a light heavyweight championship bout between Rosenbloom and Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, at Atlantic City auditorium, Aug. 30.

Negotiations for the bout are under way—both fighters having exhausted competition in their own class and being denied permission to fight overweight bouts in New York.

Walker is under suspension in New York and if Rosenbloom accepts the bout he plans to renounce his title to avoid suspension by the New York commission for meeting an ineligible fighter.

4 TEAMS COMPETE FOR D-BALL HONORS

Playoff in City League Scheduled to Start Next Tuesday

With the playoff between the four leading teams, the city diamond ball league will bring its schedule to a close next week. The final game of a 60 game schedule for the league will be played next Monday, the games starting on April 21 and continuing through July 14.

Enthusiasm on the part of both the players and the fans has marked the season, large crowds attending most of the games.

Starting next Tuesday, July 15, the four leading teams will meet in a playoff series for the city championship. A silver trophy which will become the permanent possession of the champions is now on display in the Dispatch window. The announcement of the playoff schedule will be printed early next week.

The probable entrants in the playoff series will be the J. C. Fenney team, the John M. Bye team, the Sinclair Oil team, and either the Meschke Grocery team or the Montgomery Ward team.

Pennys, the league leaders, have won 13 straight games and have been neither beaten nor tied in league competition. Even though they should lose their final game tomorrow they could not be knocked out of first place before the playoff.

The John M. Bye Clothing company team is in second place at the present time with nine victories and three defeats. This outfit won the city championship in both 1928 and 1929. The Sinclair Oil company with nine victories and four defeats is a close third in the league standing at the present time. A win for the Oilers and a defeat for the Bye team would put them in a tie for the second place in the league standing.

The Meschke grocery team is in third place at the present time with seven victories, six defeats and one tie. Montgomery Ward and company has a very good chance, however, to displace Meschke's and win a place in the playoff quartet.

The city league standing at the present time is:

League Standing	W	L	T
J. C. Fenney Co.	13	0	0
Bye Clothing Co.	9	3	0
Sinclair Oil Co.	9	4	0
Meschke Grocery	7	6	1

TESTIFIES NUDE WOMAN DANCED IN THE 'VANITIES'

EARL CARROLL'S NEW YORK SHOW IS UP IN THE COURTS

TODAY'S ACTION IS PRELIMINARY HEARING TO DECIDE ABOUT TRIAL

New York, July 11.—(U.P.)—After a policeman, who said he wore glasses "only for reading," had testified today that a nude woman danced in Earl Carroll's "Vanities," the case against the producer and several members of his cast was adjourned again in Jefferson Market court until July 15.

The witness was acting Capt. James Coy, self-styled expert in the matter of indecent theatrical performances, who caused the raid on the "Vanities." Today's action was a preliminary hearing to decide whether those accused must stand trial.

Coy whose experience includes testifying in the trial of Mae West for presenting "Pleasure Man," was the only witness today.

There were, Coy said, two scenes to which he objected in the "Vanities." One was a dance by Faith Bacon, whom he accused of appearing on the stage behind a transparent curtain clothed only in her blonde tresses and two feather fans which she dexterously interposed between herself and the audience.

"Was she naked," asked Magistrate Gottlieb.

"Absolutely and positively," answered the burly Coy. "From the back of her head to the soles of her feet."

"Do you wear glasses?"

"Only for reading," said Coy glaring at the attorney.

"And where were you sitting in the theatre?"

"In the 12th row."

"And you maintain that you could tell where Miss Bacon was nude from that distance?"

"Absolutely. She was positively nude."

Miss Bacon, reclining in a chair in front of the witness stand, powdered her nose.

Coy then offered to demonstrate how Miss Bacon handled her feather fans.

"If," he said, "I had a couple of fans here I could demonstrate."

There being no fans available, Coy then submitted to a cross-examination regarding his knowledge of the art of the dance. He regretted he had never seen the late Isadora Duncan perform.

"But," said Coy, "I have seen Pavlova at the Metropolitan opera house."

"Yes?"

"She wore raiment," Coy hastily added.

RING STOLEN AT BREEZY RECOVERED

Employee Takes Diamond Ring Insured for $4,000 From Room of Mrs. Fawcett

TRUCK DRIVER QUESTIONED

Robbery Occurs While Employees Are Being Shown Through Resort Owner's Home

A Breezy Point employee, is in custody here today in connection with the theft of a diamond ring, insured for $4,000, the property of Mrs. W. H. Fawcett, stolen from her bedroom last evening while she was taking a bath just before dinner.

The valuable ring was recovered at midnight after officers had questioned employees and one of them, Jesse W. Putney, truck driver, broke down, making a confession. He lead them to the rear of the cottage where he was living, rolled away a large stone and produced the diamond ring from the earth. He has since made a complete confession of the crime.

The robbery occurred while Mrs. Fawcett had extended the courtesy to her employees to inspect the Fawcett home. Nine employees were in the party and were being shown through the house.

Curious to see Mrs. Fawcett's bedroom employees requested permission of Mrs. Fawcett's French maid to inspect it. The maid consented, believing that it would be permissible since Mrs. Fawcett was in the bathroom. The ring stolen from the dresser was the most expensive of jewelry left there by Mrs. Fawcett. Other jewelry which included an expensive necklace and diamond ring was not touched.

On returning from the bathroom Mrs. Fawcett discovered the loss of her ring. She notified M. McGlone, special officer at Breezy and summoned all employees who had been in her room before her. She spoke frankly and considerately to them.

"I want you to know that I am not losing anything by the loss of this ring. It is insured for $4,000 and the loss is the worry of the insurance company. They will send an inspector here and most surely will find the guilty person. In that event the thief will be sent to prison. Now I want to give the person who stole the ring a chance. If the ring is returned to 'Mac' (the special officer) nothing will be said or done about it. 'Mac' will be sworn to secrecy and will not even tell me. You agree with me it is a fair proposition," Mrs. Fawcett told the employees.

Each employee in turn was questioned and each was absolved of blame. The questioning of Putney approached. Officer McGlone who watched over the employees not being questioned saw he appeared unduly nervous. He asked the officer if he might get a drink. The officer agreed and followed him to an ante room.

The young man then stated to the officer he had taken the ring and offered to return it, which he did.

Putney is 20 years old. He was employed by Mrs. Fawcett on June 21 to make good a promise she had made him. She created the job of truck driver as a courtesy to him.

His employment came as the result of a trip to Minneapolis early in June by Mrs. Fawcett and a lady companion.

The two ladies became tired of driving the distance and seeing the youth standing in front of a garage at Becker asked him to drive them to Minneapolis. When they arrived at Minneapolis, Mrs. Fawcett paid him well and promised him that if ever she could help him to let her know. Later she received a letter from the youth reminding her of her promise and asking for a job at Breezy Point. She gave him the job.

Miniature Golf Course, Ablaze With Light, Played by Many on First Night

First nighters at the "Sunny Links" last evening found the miniature golf course at the corner of Sixth and Kingwood street a well laid out course with lively, tricky fairways and greens and the light entirely satisfactory for play.

The course is owned by Stanley Lennox and H. F. Carey with Harold T. Molstad manager. It is open for play through the day and evening. The masonry work gives an artistic touch to the course. The cotton seed hulls shipped from Oklahoma make the greens fast, appealing to the expert as well as the novice.

Thirty large lights of 6,000 watts were installed by the Gateway Electric Co. They cast a restful light eliminating shadow.

The season will continue until October. Miniature golf courses are becoming popular throughout the country.

Soft drinks, candy and cigarettes are sold at the club house where a radio provides music for the onlookers and players.

RING STOLEN AT BREEZY RECOVERED

Employee Takes Diamond Ring Insured for $4,000 From Room of Mrs. Fawcett

TRUCK DRIVER QUESTIONED

Robbery Occurs While Employees Are Being Shown Through Resort Owner's Home

A Breezy Point employee, is in custody here today in connection with the theft of a diamond ring, insured for $4,000, the property of Mrs. W. H. Fawcett, stolen from her bedroom last evening while she was taking a bath just before dinner.

The valuable ring was recovered at midnight after officers had questioned employees and one of them, Jesse W. Putney, truck driver, broke down, making a confession. He led them to the rear of the cottage where he was living, rolled away a large stone and produced the diamond ring from the earth. He has since made a complete confession of the crime.

The robbery occurred while Mrs. Fawcett had extended the courtesy to her employees to inspect the Fawcett home. Nine employees were in the party and were being shown through the house.

Curious to see Mrs. Fawcett's bedroom employees requested permission of Mrs. Fawcett's French maid to inspect it. The maid consented, believing that it would be permissible since Mrs. Fawcett was in the bathroom. The ring stolen from the dresser was the most expensive of jewelry left there by Mrs. Fawcett. Other jewelry which included an expensive necklace and diamond ring was not touched.

On returning from the bathroom Mrs. Fawcett discovered the loss of her ring. She notified M. McGlone, special officer at Breezy and summoned all employees who had been in her room before her. She spoke frankly and considerably to them.

"I want you to know that I am not losing anything by the loss of this ring. It is insured for $4,000 and the loss is the worry of the insurance company. They will send an inspector here and most surely will find the guilty person. In that event the thief will be sent to prison. Now I want to give the person who stole the ring a chance. If the ring is returned to 'Mac' (the special officer) nothing will be said or done about it. 'Mac' will be sworn to secrecy and will not even tell me. You agree with me it is a fair proposition," Mrs. Fawcett told the employees.

Each employee in turn was questioned and each was absolved of blame. The questioning of Putney approached. Officer McGlone who watched over the employees not being questioned saw he appeared unduly nervous. He asked the officer if he might get a drink. The officer agreed and followed him to an ante room.

The young man then stated to the officer he had taken the ring and offered to return it, which he did.

Putney is 20 years old. He was employed by Mrs. Fawcett on June 21 to make good a promise she had made him. She created the job of truck driver as a courtesy to him.

His employment came as the result of a trip to Minneapolis early in June by Mrs. Fawcett and a lady companion. The two ladies became tired of driving the distance and seeing the youth standing in front of a garage at Becker asked him to drive them to Minneapolis. When they arrived at Minneapolis, Mrs. Fawcett paid him well and promised him that if ever she could help him to let her know. Later she received a letter from the youth reminding her of her promise and asking for a job at Breezy Point. She gave him the job.

Hat Sizes

Hat sizes are fixed by measuring the length, inside, from front to back, and then the middle width. Add together, and divide by two. The result is the size.

"WHERE'S EMILY?"
by CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE.

ON the eve of her marriage to Rodney Sayre, Emily Duane disappears. She had left her Hilldale Park home, "Knollwood," to visit the hospital, but never reached there. Foul play is feared when Jim Pennington reports his wife, Pauline, and Emily's best friend, also missing. Pennington says he left his wife at the ravine, a short distance from the Duane home. When he returned she had vanished. The police find Emily's body in the ravine.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVI.

"MURDOCK and Lawlor are standing by, but I must get back. There's a deal to be done. And no doctor or anybody could get down there, you see. You know how steep and craggy it is, and more'n fifty feet deep. We've got to get the lady up, and that's a problem of itself."

"Well, Jennings, you get along, then." Lamb was alert enough now when he had something to do. "I'll tell Mr. Pennington—of course, he can be of no help—so we'd best keep him here for a while. You—you saw nothing of Miss Duane?"

Rodney Sayre turned to Jennings with his haggard face still dazed at the news he had heard. "No, sir, nothing at all. But I must see Mr. Pennington before I go. You see, it's his wife—"

"Yes, I see," Lamb returned quickly. "He must be consulted, though of course he'll not be able to do anything—"

"That he won't. It was all Murdock could do to get down, I dunno how he'll get up again, or get the lady up."

"Is there water in the ravine?" "No, sir, it's dry just now. It's never very wet, anyway. Can we see Mr. Pennington now?"

The three returned to the lounge, and as Rodney said down in silence on the sofa, Lamb went to Jim Pennington and laid a hand on his shoulder.

"Bad news for you, Jim," he said, slowly, with a compassionate look.

"For me? What is it?"

"They've found Mrs. Pennington, and she's hurt—badly hurt."

"Hurt? How? Let me go to her. What's Jenkins doing here again? Has he seen Emily?"

"No, but he has seen your wife, and she—she fell over the bridge into the ravine."

Pennington looked simply incredulous.

"Fall over the bridge into the ravine? Why, she couldn't. The ravine is too high."

"Well, she did," Lamb's nerves were giving way, "and she's lying at the bottom of the ravine, badly hurt—"

Pennington rose and his face went white.

"What are you trying to tell me? If she's at the bottom of the ravine, she's not hurt—she's dead."

"Yes," Lamb assented, glad to have the dread ordeal come to its climax at last.

"Pauline—dead—it can't be—"

All of Jim Pennington's careless, debonair, semi-bored manner fell from him like a garment. He seemed suddenly old, suddenly helpless.

Everybody in the room was intensely sorry for him, but what could be done?

It was hard to say any words of comfort or condolence to a man of Pennington's type. He was so cynical, so impatient of spoken sympathy, that any speech seemed banal.

And then Rodney said, seemingly not so much by way of condoling, but with a cry wrung from the depths of his tortured heart:

"Jim, I'd rather know where Emily is, even if she's dead, than to suffer this unbearable suspense."

"No, you wouldn't," Pennington returned, with his quick insight. "You may think you mean that, but I don't. Come, Mr. Jen-

"Pauline—dead—it can't be—"

All of Jim Pennington's careless, debonair, semi-bored manner fell from him like a garment. He seemed suddenly old, suddenly helpless.

Everybody in the room was intensely sorry for him, but what could be done?

It was hard to say any words of comfort or condolence to a man of Pennington's type. He was so cynical, so impatient of spoken sympathy, that any speech seemed banal.

And then Rodney said, seemingly not so much by way of condoling, but with a cry wrung from the depths of his tortured heart:

"Jim, I'd rather know where Emily is, even if she's dead, than to suffer this unbearable suspense."

"No, you wouldn't," Pennington returned, with his quick insight. "You may think you mean that, but it isn't true. Come, Mr. Jennings, take me to—the place. Will somebody go with me?"

He looked round the room with a pathetic air of appeal that they never had seen in his eyes before.

"I'll go," said Pete Gibby, "I'm the best one to go. Rod, you and Lamb stay here. If there's any news of Emily, I'll come straight back and let you know."

The three men started, Gibby racking his brain to think of something to say to the man beside him.

"Don't try to help, Gibby," the other said, with understanding. "There's nothing to be said, you know. Which ravine is it?"

"The little one, sir," answered Jennings, turning his head. "Just past the Miller place."

Leaving Emily's home, the path was picturesque, being purposely left rough and stony and lined on either side with flowing wild shrubs.

The Duane house being on a hill, this path led slightly downward, but crossed the big ravine by means of a rustic bridge.

Soon after came the Miller place, a big house, also on a side-hill. This place was between the two ravines, but what with trees and rocky spots, it was scarcely visible at night.

The stony, winding path went on, and after crossing the little ravine, passed the Penningtons' home.

But, of course, our two men stopped at the bridge of the little ravine, where a group of people were already gathered.

The scene was weird, for the Hidalgo lights were not numerous, though ordinarily sufficient.

The flashlights of the police were here and there, and there seemed to be more people coming.

The first words Gibby heard were from the lips of some untutored helper, who was saying:

"Yep, I know, but how'll we get her up? Nothin' to hitch a derrick to—"

"Come away, Jim," Gibby said. "Let's go on to your house."

"See here," said Pennington, "I'm not a weakling, though I know I acted so when you first told me. I nearly went under. But the situation has to be faced, and I'm going to face it. Isn't that Dr. Eaton?"

"Yes, let's speak to him." Gibby was greatly relieved at the way Pennington was recognizing the inevitable. Time enough for collapsing and grieving after this awful situation was closed. Of course, they would get Pauline up somehow and away somewhere, but Gibby couldn't fathom how or where.

Dr. Eaton recognized Pennington and held out his hand.

Quietly he said: "I'm glad you're here. We want your advice."

"I doubt whether I can give any. What do you think of doing?"

"I've sent for an ambulance from the hospital."

"Is there hope?" and Pennington's face lighted up for a moment.

"No—but I think it the best thing to do."

"Can't we take her home?" "I'm afraid not tonight. There may be much to do too difficult for an ordinary funeral director—"

Gibby felt the shudder that ran through Pennington's body, and he broke into the conversation:

"Don't let us keep you, Doctor, I'm sure you are needed at the scene of operations."

"No, the ambulance and fixtures at the Arthur Anderson home one day last week.

A charivari party was indulged in Monday evening at the Chas. Swanson home for Mr. and Mrs. Carl Swanson who were visiting at home. And did they make noise?

haven't come yet. You see, to let down a bed or pallet is out of the question—I mean the getting of it up would be too much of a problem."

"Cut out the details, Doctor," said Gibby, irritable at last. How could even a calloused doctor be stupid enough to talk like this before the husband of that poor broken victim!

But Pennington said: "He's doing that for my sake. But he doesn't quite understand. I want to know details. It is my right. It is no kindness to me to guard me from the horrors of it all. My grief I must bear alone, but the things you propose to do, you must tell me. It is your duty."

Though Pennington spoke with utter calmness, his lips quivered, and after a keen glance at him, Doctor Eaton said:

"I think it is, and I think you will be better for knowing. We can conceive of no way of carrying the body up the side of the ravine. It is a most difficult climb for an unhampered man; with a burden it would be impossible."

"And so?" Pennington queried. "And so, we have decided to let down a hammock, which can be safely drawn up by two strong men."

Pennington drew a quick breath of relief which was echoed in Gibby's mind, for both men had vague fears of horrible things like hooks or grappling irons.

"Have you strong men to raise it?"

"Yes, have no fear. I will look out for that. The trouble is to find another who can climb down to help Murdock out. It needs a man of agility and skill, but I'm sure Jennings can get some one."

And so some of the gruesome-ness was removed, but the weirdness remained, and it even changed to a solemn rite as Pauline Pennington's body was carefully hoisted up into view.

Gibby had once seen a burial at sea, and he never forgot the sight of the swathed dead body going over the side of the ship.

But here was a dead body coming up from depths as folded over so that nothing could be seen, and though Pennington made a quick move toward it, Pete Gibby held him back with an iron grip.

There were some things in which he was determined to have his own way.

Carefully the hammock was lifted into the ambulance, and driven to the hospital.

With a quickly controlled sigh, Pennington said:

"Now, see here, Gibby, you've been a real brick. You've stood by and you've done all one man could do for another. Now, you go on home—my God! In my own tragedy I forgot all about the other one! Where's Emily?"

"Maybe at the bottom of the other ravine," said Pete somberly. "Oh, no. Well, you go on home, and I'm going over to the hospital. Even if they don't let me see her, I can be under the same roof, and if there's any word of Emily, let me know."

Gibby agreed, for he knew Pennington would be in safe hands if, as he feared, there was any sort of nervous collapse.

Stolid and material-minded himself, Pete Gibby had a sneaking contempt for the artistic temperament; but he admitted that Jim had behaved very well.

Alone, he turned back to the strange scene. Murdock was just coming up, having preferred the perilous climb to trusting to being hauled up by his fellow men.

"Don't want two bodies in the ravine in one night!" he said, as they remonstrated with him when he appeared.

Gibby shuddered, for his mind kept picturing another body, that of Emily, in the ravine that night.
